SUPERINTENDENT'S MESSAGE

Bringing in the New Year

On behalf of the Central City Public Schools, I would like to wish everyone an enjoyable Holiday Season and a happy New Year. The first semester has gone by very quickly, and I would like to applaud our teachers, support staff, and administrators for their dedicated efforts toward our students. In addition, we have a remarkable student body that is very gifted and dedicated to their future. The district is moving forward with great energy!

The holiday season is a great time of year, but for our less fortunate, this time can be very difficult and stressful. In following along with our December value of Sense of Community, we would like to express our sincere thanks to the community for helping support many of our students this holiday season with food, gifts, clothing, and other resources. Multiple churches, the Sheriff's office, the United Way, our "Give Back" program, and others have reached out and provided these students with a few items to make their holiday season a bit more enjoyable. It is groups like this that help to make our community great. Their concern and compassion for others is very evident, and we cannot thank them enough for supporting our students.

We are hopeful that 2017 will bring with it continued progress. The district is continuing a dedicated focus on evaluating curriculum, practices, and resources. Continuing to develop foundations and systems will ultimately create a stronger district that engages students in their educational process, establishes strong expectations, and meets the needs of students. The diligent process of evaluation takes time, but progress is being made.

We hope that everyone enjoys their Holiday Season with friends and family. 2016 has been a very positive and enjoyable year, and we look forward to even better things for this district and the students of this district in 2017. It is an exciting time to be a part of the Bison Family. The community has a great deal of positive momentum and many exciting things going on. We are very excited about the future of this district and proud to be a part of the community. Go Bison!!!

Superintendent

Determining a student's academic growth, strengths and weaknesses are important for schools to measure on a regular basis. Central City Public Schools gather, review and analyze student data to help understand each and every student. By collecting several forms of data, the school can determine if the student's are improving, the student's specific areas of strength and weakness and what we can do to alter instruction to best meet the needs of students. However, we also know there are a lot of intangibles to student success in school that cannot be measured but impact student success. Measuring student success is more complex than grading assignments and inserting grades in a gradebook. The school gathers a lot of data by using a variety of assessments from day one.

One of the most common and oldest forms of measurement is the teacher's professional assessment. The teacher constantly checks for student understanding by using formative or summative assessments. Formative assessment are probably the most common daily method of gathering data. Examples of formative assessments include such methods as the teacher asking questions, having students participate in a number of different learning activities and evaluating their depth of understanding, and by gauging the student's responses through daily assignments and classroom instructional activities. However, a summative assessment measures the student's knowledge or skill at the end of a chapter or unit, or at the end of the semester. A summative assessment might be a chapter or unit test or a project that encompasses information or skills learned over a specific period of time.

The school also uses norm referenced assessments to collect student data. A norm referenced assessment means that our students scores are compared to students of the same age or grade level during the same period. Central City Public Schools uses Northwest Evaluation System (NWEA) that has developed the MAP assessment (Measurement of Academic Progress) to assess student growth and to help teachers and administrators determine student success. The MAP assessment is very precise to give us quality results that are highly reliable. We can now pinpoint very specific areas of student growth in math, reading and language and then compare our students to their peers throughout the nation.

Another form of assessment is a criterion referenced of assessment. In Nebraska we use NeSA or Nebraska State Accountability assessment which is a criterion referenced summative assessment. NeSa is a statewide assessment that aligns specifically to the Nebraska state standards in math, reading, writing and science. Previously, all 11th graders in high school were expected to take the NeSA assessment. However, the state legislation and state school board made the decision last year that all 11th graders will be required to take the ACT. The ACT is a college entrance exam that is commonly given to students who are entering a university or four year college. The ACT will assess the student's knowledge and understanding in the areas of reading, language arts, math and science. After taking the ACT in the spring, we will be able to assess our students academic abilities compared to 18 other states in the union that also require all of their juniors to take the ACT assessment. Juniors will be required to the ACT, however they may wish to take the ACT more than once to improve their scores.

About CCHS DECA

DECA is in its 8th year at Central City High School! Students who are taking or who have taken Accounting, Business Law, Introduction to Business, or Marketing are able to join. Members have opportunities to use what they learn in their business classes and apply it to business situations during competition. Competition is comprised of a multiple choice test and a role play scenario. It is a great experience, allowing students to meet business leaders from around the state while showing off their knowledge of the content area! Throughout the year, we also have various social and volunteer activities. In past years we have caroled at local nursing homes, held fundraisers for the Muscular Dystrophy Association, taught CCHS students to swing dance before prom, and had a mock interview night, among many other activities.

All high school students are encouraged to take business classes and join DECA. Regardless of what students decide to do in life, they'll need some business skills, and the CCHS business classes can help provide the skills and knowledge! By joining DECA, students are able to build up their resumes, network with business leaders and other students, and have a great time!

DECA During 1st Semester

The Central City DECA members have been busy during 1st semester! Three members attended the Fall Leadership Conference in Omaha to improve on leadership, networking, and competitive skills. We held a Miracle Minute in October during the final home football game where we collected $388.01 to donate to the Muscular Dystrophy Association! Near the end of October, members teamed with National Honor Society to Trick or Treat for Canned Goods to donate to the food bank. Together, we collected quite the supply to donate! During November, we celebrated DECA Week to promote DECA throughout the high school. Each day was a different activity (from dressing for success to finding the DECA diamonds), and we also had a DECA trivia question each day. Also during November, we had our chapter movie night. Later in December, we will go caroling at a local nursing home and have our holiday party. Next semester, we plan to have a mock-interview night, Learn to Swing Dance with DECA (we will be teaching CCHS students how to swing dance before prom), our State DECA Conference/Competition, and hopefully the International Career Development Conference/Competition. It's been a great semester, and we look forward to a fantastic second semester!

Central City Public Schools will educate, challenge and prepare students with lifelong skills for the world around them.

Frequently asked Questions about School Health Screenings

Who can do school health screenings?

All persons conducting school health screenings will meet competency requirements

What health conditions will be screened?

Height, weight, vision, hearing and dental

What grade levels receive school health screenings?

KG, 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 4th, 7th and 10th

Will my child's school health screening results be kept confidential?

All school health screening information is protected by the Family Education Rights Protection Act and will be stored securely in the student's personal record. The screening information will only be released in a confidential way.

Can school health screening information be taken from my child's physical exam?

If a student provides the school with a physical exam that includes the school health screening information, the screening does not need to be repeated.

Can I waive my child's required school health screening?

All children in the specified grades will be screened (no waivers) unless the parent/guardian provides school authorities with a statement signed by a physician, physician assistant, or an advanced practice registered nurse stating that their child has undergone the required screening within the last six (6) months before the school's scheduled health screening.

My child has special needs. Will my child still receive school health screenings?

Students with special healthcare needs who cannot be screened by usual methods at school will not be excluded or overlooked by the school health screening program.

The Season

It is always good to embrace the season we are in and the season our kids are in. Let's take a minute to think about the season our kids are in. Here is a little quiz to see if you can step into the mind of your middle schooler.

Please circle the topic your middle schooler would be most interested in:

Ancient history

The quadratic equation

Writing an essay about Number the Stars

Themselves

The answer is D. It is no surprise because their identities are morphing physically, socially, and emotionally more this time than any other time of their lives. It is very important to help our kids understand that intelligence is not fixed or unalterable. My advice is that you help your child understand and become secure that their abilities and possibilities have the potential to improve their achievement in and out of the classroom.

In order to enjoy this season a little more here are a few things to keep in mind when navigating the social-emotional waters of the pre-adolescent:

1. New found independence is normal, don't be offended by it.
2. Give them undivided time once or twice a week where you are not at work or texting.
3. Try an indirect approach to questions. Instead of asking "What did you do at school today?" try sharing your positives from the day while hesitating for that chance they can share their day or thoughts. Once they start sharing, ask what they were thinking or feeling.
4. Do not judge! That includes others because they are watching and listening to your reactions about other people. How harsh you are toward others will determine if you are a safe person for them to share difficult situations or choices. You want them to be comfortable coming to you when life gets hard and it will get hard.
5. Don't overreact; drama fuels the adolescent's already hyper-reactive flame.

Finally, these years go by very quickly. Please take time to enjoy and embrace the middle school years. In a short time they will be in high school, then college. Your years of influence and time with them are winding down-enjoy it! Have a great Holiday season, thank you for sharing your kids with us, and please call anytime.

ELEMENTARY NEWS

With the start of the New Year it is a good time to reinforce good study habits and routines with your elementary child. Here are some tips to help your child develop study habits that will help them now and throughout their years in school:

- ◇ Make it routine. Have a plan for after school that your child knows when it is time to do homework and when to get started.
- ◇ Be organized and develop a plan. Go through his or her backpack to see what all needs to be done and plan how it's going to get finished.
- ◇ Break time - It's important to establish a break time especially if the task is difficult or longer.
- ◇ Limit distractions – Students should have a quiet and clean space to do homework out of the way from distractions such as the phone, TV, etc.
- ◇ Make help available – Encourage your child to work alone as appropriate, but also let your child know what to do if they need help. Ask them to try a problem first and then have you assist with the next one.
- ◇ Set Goals & Track Progress – Set goals and reward your child for good study habits by giving them some additional mom or dad time or even going out for ice cream if they bring home a paper in which they've greatly improved. This teaches work ethic and patience in working hard to reach a goal.

Bottom line – Parent involvement is so important in the homework process. Believe it or not, the habits you are cultivating right now in elementary school set the tone for success in the middle, high school and even later in life. Don't hesitate to contact your child's teacher or myself if you would like to talk about your child's study habits or ideas to help!

Mrs. Moser, Elementary Principal

Reminders for Elementary Parents:

Please make sure you are using the crosswalks when you are coming to the school. This is what is safe and sets a great safety example for our students too!

When changing after school arrangements for students, please make sure you contact the school office prior to 2:00 pm. After school arrangements should be communicated and in place with your child's classroom teacher. Occasionally emergency situations necessitate a change. Please try to have a plan in place so changes are not happening every day. Thank you for your attention to this!

Central City High School Career and College Fair 2016 - Learn to Earn

On November 23rd Central City High School hosted its ninth annual Career and College Fair called Learn to Earn. The Fair was rated highly by the staff and students. Comments like “Loved it!”, “It was very informative...”, and “It was fun and encouraging!” were prevalent.

Over fifty guest presenters, representatives, and recruiters volunteered their time and knowledge to the students during the Career and College Fair.

The keynote speaker was Mr. Kevin Kush of Boys Town. Kevin’s speech was called “Doors of Opportunity”. He spoke about being aware of the many possibilities in life, and giving one’s best effort. He emphasized the importance of making the best of any situation.

All students spent time visiting with various college representatives and military recruiters in the gym. The students seemed to have a lot of fun and gained a great amount of information from them.

Students participated in informational sessions presented by LaDonna Obermiller, Education Prevention Director of the Crisis Center; Kyle Sterner, Career and Employment Specialist with Central Community College, and Chuck Griffith, Executive Director of the Merrick Foundation.

CCHS students also heard from a variety of outstanding local and regional career awareness presenters about their specific occupations: Kevin Kush (Educator, Coach, and Author); Josie Lindell (Human Services); Robb Schnitzler (Physical Therapy), Alexis Nachtigal (Professional Musician); Tony Cain and Denise Pfeifer (Manufacturing Trainer and Human Resources); Aaron Kunz (Restaurant Owner/Manager and Lawyer); Denise Brandenburg (Real Estate and Property Management); Jacey Schwarz (Registered Nurse and Lifestyle Coach); Ryan Pfeil (Truck Driver Trainer); Nick Ryan (Agriculture/Vineyard); Josh Salinas (Certified Athletic Trainer); Charlie and Brian Fox (Construction/General Contractor); Tim Williams (Game Warden); Sarah Burbach Holley (Exercise Specialist and Physiologist); Andrea Wyman (Ultrasound Technician); and Superintendent Jeff Jensen (Teacher and Administrator).

The school day continued for CCHS students with lunch and presentations about the college going experience from recent CCHS graduates: Hannah King, Travis Schwarz, Shayleen Hubbard, Tyler Heins, Marshall Makowski, Kordell Hamer, Ryan Malasek, Kaley Brandenburg, and Caitlyn Anderson.

The day concluded with the cast of the CCHS One Act Play performing, “The Jungle Book” adopted by Jon Jory, and directed by Miss Stephanie Shearer.

Many individuals contributed to the success of the this special day and a huge thank you goes out to all high school personnel, special presenters, career presenters, college representatives, military recruiters, Litzenberg Memorial County Hospital, MidAmerica Speakers Bureau, CCHS Alumni, and the CCHS One Act cast and crew. Central City High School appreciates the partnership between the community and our high school.

The Career and College Fair was organized by CCHS Counselor Debra Anderson. Part of the funding for the Central City High School Career and College was provided through a College Access Grant from the Education Quest Foundation.

The Central City High School Chapter of National Honor Society again helped to promote the October American Red Cross Blood Drive in Central City. NHS students called past donors, put up posters, unloaded the Red Cross truck, and talked to students about the importance of donating. A number of CCHS students donated. NHS students have truly grown from the experience of working with the American Red Cross and the adults involved from our community.
